

Now and Then

As I sit on the beach

I watch ships sail by

And I let out a deep sigh

How I wish I could be right there

Gliding through rough seas

Without a care

I hear waves crash

Against sandy shores

While fish accidentally hit each other

In their underwater war

I sit and dream of me on a ship,

How it would be

And that one day

It could be real